

Are solar batteries tax deductible in Massachusetts?

Massachusetts does not have any state-specific tax incentives for energy storage systems like solar batteries. However, homeowners installing a solar battery can still save on their taxes with the federal investment tax credit (ITC).

How can a resident participate in a battery storage program?

Residents can participate in the program by either installing a battery storage system with a new solar panel system, adding a battery storage system to an existing solar system, or installing a stand-alone battery storage system for their home. A device called an inverter will control your battery. Qualifying inverters include:

What is solar Massachusetts's renewable target program?

The Solar Massachusetts's Renewable Target (SMART) program pays Eversource, National Grid, and Unitil customers a bonus for each kilowatt-hour (kWh) of electricity produced by their solar panel system. An additional bonus, or 'adder', is offered if a solar panel system is paired with a battery.

What is a battery storage system?

The Sponsors of Mass Save offer incentives for reducing energy use during periods of peak electricity demand. A battery storage system operates like a rechargeable phone, tablet, or laptop battery, but on a much larger scale. Many residents use battery storage systems to be prepared for power outages.

Can a Bay Stater save money on a home battery?

Massachusetts residents can save thousands on a home battery due to federal, state, and utility incentives currently available. Register on the EnergySage Marketplace to compare solar options and save money at the same time.

Why do residents use battery storage systems?

Many residents use battery storage systems to be prepared for power outages. Through Connected Solutions, residents receive incentives for lowering and/or shifting electricity usage during times of peak demand (like hotter days during the summer).
