

Can Hurricanes damage solar panels?

"Hurricanes can bring strong winds and those winds can damage a lot of infrastructure," said Ceferino. "We're still understanding what impact these high winds bring on solar panels." Winds can reach more than 180 miles per hour during a Category 5 hurricane, which has the potential to rip a panel clean off its bracket.

Can solar panels withstand hurricane-force winds?

If you live in an area that's at risk for hurricanes, you might be wondering if solar panels can withstand hurricane-force winds and other natural disasters. After all, hurricanes can create wind speeds in excess of 160 miles per hour, blow down trees, knock around cars, and send debris flying through the air at dangerous speeds.

After all, hurricanes can create wind speeds in excess of 160 miles per hour, blow down trees, knock around cars, and send debris flying through the air at dangerous speeds. The researchers analyzed wind fields and solar panel structural performance data in the Caribbean for Hurricanes Irma, Maria and Dorian, and found that panels were failing at lower winds than they were supposed to and were performing below code requirements, particularly the ones installed on residential rooftops.

Are solar panels hurricane-proof?

You're not likely to find a solar panel system with a "hurricane-proof" label. That's because all top-rated solar panels, like those used by Palmetto, are designed to handle extreme water and wind, since they are located on your roof and need to work for 25+ years.

Do solar panels need hurricane straps?

You can save a lot on insurance too! Hurricane straps are a clip built into your roof that increases the strength of the connection between your roof and your house's walls and foundation. By reducing the risk that your roof will be damaged in high winds, you can help protect your solar panels.
