

Why do you need a solar-powered address number?

Whether it's daytime or nighttime, our modern house numbers ensure clear visibility for visitors, delivery drivers, and emergency services. Embrace renewable energy with our solar-powered address numbers. The built-in solar panel charges during the day, storing energy for illuminating your address at night.

What is a solar powered house number?

The Percompile Solar Powered House Number carries a modern design. The waterproof number board is housed inside the aluminum frame. The surface-mounted white LEDs brighten up the address numbers by focusing light on the PVC whiteboard. A warm color temperature of 3000K is thereby achieved.

Why do you need a solar-powered house number?

Clearly visible house numbers help delivery personnel, emergency responders, and visitors find their way. Solar-powered house numbers meet this need by using sunlight to light up addresses at night. By storing solar energy during the day, they improve both appearance and functionality, making it easier to identify properties in the dark.

What is a solar-powered address sign?

The solar-powered address sign from LeiDrail is among our top recommendations, especially because of its clear number markings. It uses amorphous silicon panels to illuminate itself at night with bright white lights, allowing visitors, emergency vehicles, and courier services to find your residence with ease.
