

Should you switch to solar energy in Hawaii?

Tax credits offset your tax liability, so it's only useful if you owe federal income taxes in the first place. Hawaii has additional incentives to make it even more affordable to switch to solar energy. These include residential, commercial and agricultural tax credits, loan programs and rebates.

How can Hawaii make solar energy more affordable?

Hawaii has additional incentives to make it even more affordable to switch to solar energy. These include residential, commercial and agricultural tax credits, loan programs and rebates. Counties in Hawaii must prioritize permit applications for new construction with solar and energy efficiency measures.

How much do solar panels cost in Hawaii?

There's no way around it: Installing solar panels is expensive. In Hawaii, a typical 8-kilowatt residential system costs $27,680 before any financial incentives. After considering the federal solar tax credit, that price drops to $19,376.

Does Hawaiian Electric pay for solar?

Now, Hawaiian Electric pays you for sending excess solar power to the grid, but at rates lower than the retail electricity price. So, you're actually losing money compared to just using the solar for your own home. On the bright side, you can still get a $500 reward for enrolling. There are other solar incentives you might be eligible for.

What are Hawaii energy programs?

Hawaii's Energy programs are funded by, and available to, Hawaii's residents in the counties of Maui, Hawaii, and Honolulu. Hawaii's Energy provides rebates for water heating, lighting, appliances, air conditioning, and solar water heater tune-up, among others.

Does Hawaiian Electric offer solar water heater financing?

Hawaiian Electric, in partnership with the County of Maui, offers an interest-free financing program for solar water heaters. This program may be combined with Hawaii's Energy's $1,000 solar water rebate, in addition to some qualifying state and federal tax credits, making solar water heaters even more affordable to interested residents.
